

Nanaimo RCMP appeal for help

NANAIMO — It's been nine years since Lisa Marie Young disappeared, but Nanaimo RCMP have renewed their call for the public to help them solve the mystery. Young was last seen at about 3 a.m. on June 30, 2002, leaving a house party in the Cathers Lake area of Nanaimo. She left the party with a man who was driving an older model red Jaguar. At 4:30 a.m., she phoned one of her friends. That was the last known contact with her.

"Someone knows what happened to her and the time to call is now," Const. Gary O'Brien said.
